Americans Break Down Final Enemy Defensive Positions at Munda After Advance

DESTROYER IS FIRED

BY C. YATES McDANIEL
Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Aug. 3.—(P)—The battle of Munda neared its climax today with United States forces breaking down final Japanese defensive positions after a general advance of 500 to 1,200 yards carried them almost to the edge of the strategic New Georgia airfield.

Supplementing General Douglas MacArthur's Tuesday communique which announced the advance, a naval spokesman for Admiral William F. Halsey's command in the south Pacific said American troops reached a point "close to the eastern edge of the field."

A portion of Biblo Hill, enemy strongpoint defending the north-east approach to Munda, was captured in the American onslaught, the spokesman said. He disclosed the tanks, flame throwers and artillery supported marine and army units in their advance.

Simultaneously, Allied forces in New Guinea brought the Japanese stronghold at Salamaua under artillery bombardment for the first time.

These new successes were recounted today in a communique which also told of a one-sided aerial victory over the Japanese, of the firing of an enemy destroyer, and of a heavy bombing of the Buna-Faisi harbor and the Kahili airbase, the enemy's major operating base in the Solomons.

Fourteen Lightning fighters, escorting bombers hunting barges along the southern coast of the Huon Peninsula, pounced upon an equal number of enemy fighters. Eleven Zeros were shot down in (Turn to Page Nine)

RESTRICTIONS MADE ON MAKING OF WINES

Harrisburg, Aug. 3.—(P)—Pennsylvanians who like to fill a corner of the cellar with home-made wine will have to mark up that activity as another homefront casualty—the war food administration says the fruit is needed as food.

Use of 25 kinds of fruit and berries to make alcoholic products at home was banned yesterday by the food distribution administration in Pennsylvania on orders of the federal agency.

Robert M. J. Matteson, assistant FDA supervisor, listed the principal fruits and berries affected as apples, apricots, blackberries, blueberries, concord grapes, cherries, currants, elderberries, huckleberries, peaches, pears, plums and raspberries.

As Battle For Island Rages Into Climactic Phases German Broadcast Declares President Has Made Seven-Point Armistice Proposal

PREMIER BADOGLIO MAINTAINS SILENT DEFIANCE

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press War Editor

Allied troops, racing to deliver the knockout blow in the battle of Sicily, were officially credited today with smashing through the center of the enemy's 55-mile Mt. Etna defense line, capturing at least five more strategic towns and wiping out a bulge of 70 square miles.

Axis defenses appeared to be crumbling rapidly.

"Our troops, fighting hard, are forcing their way through rugged and roadless country," the Allied command announced.

Italian headquarters acknowledged that the Allies had launched a powerful assault on the German-defended southern flank where Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army has been hammering for weeks to break into Catania.

"The enemy has extended his attacks on the southern sector of the front, where bitter fighting is going on," the Italian war bulletin said.

Axis prisoners now pass the 90,000 mark.

As the battle raged into its climactic phases, the Germans news agency, DNB, broadcast a Geneva dispatch to the Italian newspaper Il Popolo di Roma declaring that President Roosevelt had made a seven-point armistice proposal to Italy.

By Axis account, Mr. Roosevelt laid down the following terms:

1. The Italian army and navy are to cease all resistance.
2. Collaboration with Germany must cease at once.
3. Italian troops in Greece, Albania, France and former Yugoslavia are to be withdrawn at once.
4. War materials must be handed over to the Allies undamaged.
5. A British-American-Soviet military government will be established in Italy until the end of operations.
6. The arrest of all war criminals.
7. Release of all Allied prisoners of war on Italian soil.

On the work fronts, the Allies were in the ascendancy.

On the Sicilian front, Gen. Eisenhower's command announced that Allied armies were now sweeping into the western end of the Catania Plain, while Allied warships were reported shelling German and Italian troops retreating eastward along the Tyrrhenian sea coast toward Messina.

Prime Minister Churchill said American troops driving along the northern coast toward the Axis "escape port" at Messina were advancing in the face of extensive demolitions by the enemy.

Underlining Gen. Eisenhower's warning that Italy would be brought under devastating aerial assault, the Italian command reported today that Allied bombers struck again at Naples, Italy's greatest port, and raided other points in southern Italy and Sardinia.

On the Italian home front, Premier Badoglio maintained his silent defiance of the Allies' invasion warnings, and dispatches from Madrid said there was talk of an impending "peace march" on Rome.

Anti-Fascist forces inside Italy were reported gathering strength to force Badoglio to capitulate.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 3.—(P)—All but two of 30 coal miners indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of violating the anti-strike law have been released on bonds of $1,000 each to appear for arraignment Aug. 9, the U. S. marshal's office disclosed yesterday.

Ickes Says Oil Supply Is Low

Washington, Aug. 3.—(P)—Declaring that declining oil reserves make it impossible for America to "continue to rip and roar through an endless golden age of gasoline," Secretary Ickes today endorsed a congressional move to build demonstration plants for the extraction of motor fuel from coal and coal shales.

On the other hand, he said, we can count on about three trillion tons of coal—enough, he said, to produce 1,500,000,000 gallons of synthetic fuel each year for 1,000 years and still have enough coal for all present day purposes.

Among three cases listed for hearing in June at which no one appeared and which were marked as "passed" pending further word, was that of Floyd Johnson, Warren, statutory rape.

After a night of rioting touched off by a gunplay-tussle between a white policeman and a Negro soldier, dawn broke over New York's Harlem to reveal scenes such as this, a clothing store's facade smashed and window dummies stripped and broken, ruined garments and shattered glass littering the sidewalk. The store is Orkin's, on 125th street between Eighth and Lenox avenues.

But Handful of States Can Avoid Drafting of Fathers After Oct. 1, Survey Shows

Washington, Aug. 3.—Only a handful of states can get through October without some drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, now that selective service has lifted the ban against it, an official survey today indicated.

Many states reported they were scraping the bottom of the manpower barrel and if they are to meet October quotas, fathers heretofore deferred for dependency reasons, alone must go into uniform.

Draft headquarters authorities expressed regret that the step had to be taken, asserting every means would be exhausted first before general induction would proceed.

None would predict, however, that men with families would still be civilians much after November 1, unless, of course, they were engaged in essential occupations, or farming, or local boards ruled their induction would bring severe hardship to their wives and children.

A number of states, including Pennsylvania, were unwilling to forecast the course of inductions in their localities, pending clarifying orders from the national headquarters.

New Jersey said none would be called before November 1.

Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt announced yesterday the lifting of the ban on induction of fathers whose children were born before Sept. 15, 1942. He emphasized, however, that the local boards should call up fathers after October 1 only to the extent "absolutely required" to meet their quotas.

It was estimated that perhaps 300,000 family men actually would be inducted this year. To get this many into uniform, what with rejections, it probably would be necessary to call up fathers in large numbers.

Commutation Is Denied In Bruno Cases

Harrisburg, Aug. 3.—(P)—Governor Martin, on recommendation of the state pardon board, today refused to commute the sentences of Joseph and Philip Bruno, brothers, serving life terms for the Kalamazoo election eve slayings in 1934.

RED COLUMNS ARE CLOSING IN ON OREL

Two Main Roads Leading From Bolkhov South to Base Reported Taken By Soviets

GERMANS WITHDRAW

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, Aug. 3.—(P)—The Red Star reported today that the Soviet army has captured two main roads leading from Bolkhov south to Orel and southwest to Karachev threatening the German communications with Bryansk and leaving them only one unmenaced highway from the base southwest to Dmitrovsk.

(A clarification of German broadcasts last night in which the Germans seemingly admitted a Russian penetration into southwest Orel proper was contained in today's German communique. It said fresh, strong Russian infantry, tank and air forces attempted to break through "southwest of Orel" but were warded off by "heroically fighting" German troops. Ground temporarily lost was regained, the communique said.)

The Germans had concentrated large forces northwest of Orel and established a strong system of fortified points in an effort to hold the two roads, the Red army newspaper said, but intensified Russian attacks broke the enemy line and it appeared that Orel itself might be in danger of complete isolation as the Germans continued to withdraw westward from their shattered positions.

The Red army advanced within a few miles of the town of Karachev, occupation of which would finally cut the highway running northwest from Orel through Karachev to Bryansk, German supply base.

On this front the Russians have fanned out from the recently captured base of Bolkhov in a widely developing movement against the rear of the German defenders of Orel.

The Germans increased their pressure steadily southwest of Voroshilovgrad where they were attempting to regain the Donets basin defense line.

The Russians nevertheless continued to beat off the attacks inflicting severe losses on the enemy, the dispatch said.

Lewis Pleads For Pay Hike Before W.L.B.

By JOSEPH A. LOETUS
Washington, Aug. 3.—(P)—John L. Lewis told the War Labor Board (WLB) today that American miners "are the only mine workers in any civilized country who do not receive compensation for travel time at each end of the shift."

Without a trace of belligerency before the board he long defied and ignored, Lewis appeared in behalf of a proposed supplemental wage agreement with the Illinois coal operators which would increase miners' earnings a minimum of $2.75 a day, including $1.25 for travel time.

Lewis' United Mine Workers contended the miners are entitled to portal-to-portal pay not only under the wage and hour law, but also under the National Labor Relations Act.

The plaintiffs contended they were appointed by the auditor general and could be removed only by the appointing power. Deputy Attorney General Ralph E. Umland, however, argued to the court in presenting the commonwealth's case.

Talk of Sales Tax Is Revived

Washington, Aug. 3.—(P)—Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the tax-framing house ways and means committee cut short his vacation and returned to the capital today amid renewed discussions for and against a sales tax as a source of extra money for the war effort.

Doughton came back from North Carolina earlier than he had expected, to anxious to check on the treasury's ideas for new and higher taxes to meet President Roosevelt's demands for $12,000,000,000 more than now is collected.

Coinciding with his arrival, some congressional tax sources said they thought there was too much sentiment against a sales tax for such a bill to become law.

The treasury itself has been against a sales levy.

"Evader" Found to Be Among Unsung Heroes

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—(P)—Rudolph Rickenback, 35, admitted he hadn't been keeping in touch with his draft board.

He'd been busy, he explained, what with being torpedoed four times on merchant ships.

"As far as I'm concerned," declared U. S. Commissioner Norman J. Griffin, before whom Rickenback was arraigned on a charge of violating the selective service act, "members of the merchant marine are the unsung heroes of this war. I'm not going to send them to jail."

BULLETIN

London, Aug. 3.—(P)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm today said a Danish consular official returned from Hamburg told the Aftonbladet correspondent in Copenhagen that he estimated there were 200,000 dead in Hamburg as a result of Allied bombings. In London, however, this figure was regarded with skepticism. It was pointed out Hamburg's total population is only about 1,600,000.

School Board Disposes Of Many Matters

Continuous Session at High And Beaty Given Approval of Directors

VACANCIES ARE FILLED

At last night's session of school board, members approved a continuous session for pupils attending high school and Beatty school, filled all teaching and janitorial positions in the district and complied with a request from the governing board of the Weekday Religious Education Council for changes in that program for students.

The continuous session program will be on an experimental basis and will be put into effect with the opening of the fall school term on September 8. Pupils attending both the above school buildings will be required to bring lunch or buy it in the school cafeterias, with additional provision made for bringing a partial lunch and securing hot soup or milk at the buildings. There will be no dismissal for pupils to go outside the building for lunch hour. School sessions will begin as usual at 8:40 a. m. and will dismiss at 3:10 p. m. This entire set-up will be announced in detail in tomorrow's issue of this paper.

Request of Miss Ethel DeForest to retire August 31, 1943 after 45 years' service on the teaching staff was officially granted by the board and an expression of appreciation for her service placed on record.

Miss DeForest, after teaching one year in Ludlow elementary grades, came here in 1898 and has since been regularly employed in elementary grades of Warren public schools, except for a period of two years. In recent years she has been first grade teacher at South street.

Miss Twila A. Hoover, of Indiana, Pa., was elected vocal music teacher to succeed Carroll A. Fowler, the board having a field of about 50 applicants. She is a graduate of Indiana State Teachers College and has taught in Chesson and more recently in the famous Otto Township High School at Duke Center.

Mrs. Mary A. Megahan, of Clarion, has been selected to fill the commercial department vacancy occasioned by resignation of Miss Beatrice Koonz. Graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and more recently employed in Clarion public schools, she will be assigned to the high school here.

Mrs. S. M. McClure, who has rendered exceptional service on the high school staff for some years, was designated a teacher under (Turn to Page Nine)

New York, Aug. 3.—(P)—Order returned to New York's Harlem today by authorities remained on the alert to prevent a possible recurrence of yesterday's rioting which left in its wake five persons dead, 545 injured, 509 arrests and an estimated $5,000,000 in property damage.

As 6,000 police and 1,500 members of the city patrol corps patrolled the streets only a few isolated disturbances were reported last night in the heavily-populated negro section where:

A 10:30 p. m. curfew was put into effect clearing the streets of virtually all but police.

Bars and package liquor stores were closed and theaters empty. The war-time dim-out was lifted.

The only activity in addition to the patrolling police and volunteers was repair work being done to stores damaged during yesterday's looting.

Nearly all of those arrested yesterday were arraigned before four magistrates, two of whom sat until midnight last night.

A majority were accused of burglary—outgrowth of the looting.

PENNSYLVANIANS IN NAVY CASUALTY LIST

Washington, Aug. 3.—(P)—The names of six Pennsylvanians missing in action were announced today by the navy department.

The names were included in a list of 71 casualties, including three dead, 16 wounded and 52 missing. This brought to 27,713 the total of navy, marine corps and coast guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total included 8,831 dead, 4,865 wounded, 9,842 missing and 4,166 prisoners of war.

RECORD MADE FOR ATTACKS ON TARGET

Thirty Bombers Reported Lost in Giant Raid, Which Includes Attacks On Other Objectives

CITY HEAP OF RUBBLE

BULLETIN

London, Aug. 3.—(P)—A great fleet of the RAF's biggest bombers returned to battered Hamburg last night, giving that once-thriving German port its ninth pounding in ten days to break all records for sustained attacks upon a single target.

Fires set in the last assault on Hamburg Thursday night were still burning as the RAF swept over the city to add to the havoc created by some 8,000 tons of bombs dropped in the seven previous raids.

Thirty bombers were reported lost in the raid, which was carried out in great force and was accompanied by attacks upon other objectives in northwest Germany, an announcement said.

An air ministry communique said that in addition to the raid on Hamburg, other bombers blasted objectives in the Ruhr valley, and that Beaufighters and Mosquitos from the fighter command flew deep into Airdrie and targets at Sylt and Cuxhaven were bombed, but results were not announced.

Two fighter command planes were reported missing.

Royal Australian air force Hampdens of the coastal command operating off the coast of Norway, torpedoed an enemy supply ship, the communique said.

The assaults broke a two-night lull in the great Allied aerial offensive which was launched on Saturday, July 24 when American bombers blasted the German base at Trondheim, Norway, by daylight. The smashing blows at Hamburg (Turn to Page Nine)

Price Panel to Save Money For Consumer

Savings of many dollars per month for Warren County housewives is expected to result from the educational work with grocers planned by the volunteer Price Panel and Price Panel Assistants of the local War Price and Rationing board.

In almost no cases has the Price Panel found intentional violation of ceiling prices by grocers. But farm prices are rising. There have been current changes in subsidy procedures. So most grocers need help to take the "guess-work" out of their pricing and to calculate their ceiling prices accurately.

This help is now being given by Warren's Price Panel board to whom full responsibility for the administration of food price ceilings has been delegated by the district OPA office in Erie.

An average of 14 items will be price checked. As the weeks go by, checks on the same and other grocery items will be conducted. Should a grocer who has been shown he is "in violation" on a given item, fail to correct his price, he will be called into conference with the Price Panel in formal session. If, after that, he still fails to correct his price, the Warren Price Panel will be obliged to refer the case to the legal division of the OPA in Erie.

All ceiling price regulations on food which have been assigned for administration by the Warren board, give the retailer a protected fair margin of profit. So the work of the Price Panel volunteers does not constitute any unfair hardship on the stores checked. Mrs. W. C. Fuchthart, Warren Price Panel chairman, has expressed sincere appreciation of the fine spirit of cooperation shown by the grocers of this county.

All meat dealers have now received the new government ceiling prices. These must be displayed in the store where even the weak-eyed customers can read them.

Sea Bees Want Construction Crews Badly

Warren county men who are interested in joining the Navy's 210,000 SeaBees to do construction work on air and naval bases wherever the armed forces need them, can see Lieutenant M. O. Foss, SeaBee officer, at the Jamestown Navy Recruiting station on Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning, August 3 or 4.

Lt. Foss, who visits the Jamestown Navy office each week, has been rating men as second class, first class, and chief petty officers, according to their previous construction or allied trades experience.

"The Navy especially wants men who are not only skilled in a trade, but who can handle men. The men can get high petty officer ratings. And there are still places in the SeaBees for the 'jack of all trades', although his starting rating may not be high. Men of draft age can go in the SeaBees after an interview," Lt. Foss said. "After they find out what rating they are eligible for, they can volunteer for induction through their selective service board."

CRETE: Aegean Island May Follow Sicily as Invasion Target

Crete may be next of the Mediterranean steppingstone islands to be hit by Allied invasion, for the usual curtain-raiser bombings have hit many of her military installations, harbors and airfields. This is the island that guards approaches to the Aegean Sea and Greece. German paratroopers and airborne troops made military history here with their 13-day blitz in the summer of 1941.

Magazine Reveals Duties Of Red Cross Workers Overseas

A special dispatch cabled for the July issue of The American Magazine from North Africa, reveals something of the responsibilities and duties of Red Cross field workers overseas and is particularly applicable to the recently acquired overseas activities of Ralph Chester, veteran of World War 1 and past commander of the local Legion Post.

The article, cabled May 31 when the Allies were smashing at the Germans from the south and west tells of the operations of Tom Furness, veteran of the First Division in 1917-18 and attached to that division as a Red Cross worker in the Tunisian campaign.

It relates how with determined set to his jaw he would be driving a shivering Chevy filled to overflowing with such items as soap, towels, candy bars, tobacco, reading material, writing paper for the boys up front. He has little time for small talk and the comforts of home. These things have been left behind by the soldiers at the front and Tom is a true soldier.

He spends much of his time in the field. It's not a desk job. It's a job that has taken him and his colleagues through divebombs, strafing attacks. Numerous are the times they have jumped their Chevy into a foxhole to escape the fire of enemy planes.

He has learned about new guns, tanks, military vehicles—everything that makes the present army click. In his own words, his conception of a Red Cross field director is "a man whose job it is to live with his troops, work with his troops and share their dangers. In other words, he is a soldier—the same as a guy with a gun, even though he must be classified as a noncombatant. The boys won't respect you unless they see you are sharing their danger and troubles. Then they are sold on you and on the Red Cross. A soldier is a simple man who wants and needs simple things. He is a homesick guy and little things we can do for him, even though he may take them for granted at the moment, are tremendously appreciated and this appreciation is shown in many ways. Their appreciation is our reward."

The director's job is two-fold. There's the personal welfare work in which he makes himself responsible for the civilian phase of a soldier's life where the army must of necessity leave off. He is a roving ambassador of good will, transmits message to and from the soldier and his family. Secondly, is the work of delivering comfort articles which fill his creaking Chevy, the task of keeping morale at a high level, the job of keeping the Yanks smiling on their job.

Warren has a number of men in the Red Cross field service, but so far, Mr. Chester is the only one acknowledged in a foreign field.

Culvert Approved To Carry Water of Rampant Indian Run

Indian Run, which has caused the hair of a succession of councilmen to turn grey is at last to be conquered. For generations its flood waters have poured from off the township hills into a water course through the borough and have deluged council with kicks and complaints. Much money has been spent in vain efforts to keep the water where it belongs but now council has taken the thing seriously in hand and last night it was voted to build a box culvert 3x8 feet in size which will give a space of 24 feet in which the flood waters can gambol. The sewer committee last evening introduced a resolution under which the work will be done by the borough and a start will be made as soon as possible so that it can be finished before the fall rains start.

The finance committee reported $90,985.36 in the general fund and that they had retired two of the 1913 issue bonds.

The sum of $250 was voted to the Selective Service Fund which is used to give cigarettes to the men leaving for U. S. Service.

During the past month the parking meters have turned $724.47 into the borough coffers as against $552.30 for the same period last year. The police also reported fines amounting to $39.75 had been collected last month. During the same period the Burgess collected $18 in license fees. Now if you want a bicycle the police were empowered to hold an auction of nine bicycles that have been stored in the basement of the city building. They have been picked up at various times and the owners have not called. So if it's legal they will be sold. A new Chevrolet automobile was ordered purchased for use of the police department. It will cost Joe Warren $450 and the car now in use.

The fire committee reported 14 alarms last month with a loss of $10,270.

Good progress was reported on the new Fourth ward fire station and the committee was authorized to buy a furnace and to have it installed.

The sum of $31.95 was received from the borough scales last month while $82.84 was received from the airport.

The park commission reported the playgrounds have been well attended this summer and that four reservations for picnics have been booked for the next few weeks. Organizations wishing to make reservations can now call at the city clerk's office. Eight picnic tables have also been erected in the parks.

Council confirmed the appointment of Paul Braunschweiger and Cecil Winans as members of the Board of Health.

Family With Four Wage Earners Instead of One, Figure It Out Themselves

This picture typifies millions of American workers who have been the sole support of their families. This worker in recent months has received the highest wages in his lifetime, and is investing 10% of his income in War Bonds.

For several months now, however, his wife, who also represents some 16 million women in war work, has been employed in a well paid job greatly increasing the family income, while the overhead cost of living has remained almost static.

To add to this family income another member of the family, a sister and aunt, has also obtained employment in a war industry which manufactures parachutes. Her addition to the family income more than doubles the original one-man income.

The daughter now gives the family 4 wage earners instead of one. She is employed regularly as an elevator operator, her wage adding to the family income where only 10% of the 200% total increase goes into War Bonds.

Here the family group is shown figuring out themselves how much more of their increased family income they can put into War Bonds. It can now easily be 25 to 50% of the total income. Typical American families everywhere are figuring it out for themselves.

A CITY PRAYER

A suggestion that the council meetings in Manchester, England, be opened with prayer was carried by a large majority recently. One of the prayers officially adopted for its use is deserving of consideration.

As the Christian Science Monitor says in commenting upon it, "with the ideas contained therein, the deliberations of any council would surely be set free from much that is sordid and selfish." Here it is:

"O God, grant us a vision of our city, fair as she might be; a city of justice, where none shall prey on others; a city of plenty, where vice and poverty shall cease to fester; a city of brotherhood, where all success shall be founded on service, and honor shall be given to nobleness alone, a city of peace, where order shall not rest on force, but on the love of all for the city, the great mother of the common life and weal. Hear Thou, O Lord, the silent prayer of all our hearts as we each pledge our time and strength and thought to speed the day of her coming beauty and righteousness."

DANGER IN SWIMMING

This is the swimming season, a joyous time it is, especially for the younger boys. It is a sad time, too, for it is also the season for drownings. And this year, over a large part of the country, it is more dangerous than usual because there has been so much rain, and water has been deeper than ordinary, with stronger currents.

Warren county already has had two swimming fatalities, hence it seems timely to offer a few reminders to boys who enjoy this pastime.

It is a bad time to show off, going beyond the depth when they can swim little or not at all. Only the strong and expert swimmer can afford to take chances. And even he should go slow in entering water cold enough to give him the shivers.

Another good rule is not to keep on when a fellow is exhausted. Swimming is not only a delightful sport; it is also hard work, and easily overdone. Take it easy!

WAY TO GET HELP

A St. Louis department store has found a new way to get help. It puts invitations to apply for a job into its monthly bills, and has found a good many customers both willing and able to serve.

The idea has possibilities. Baseball teams are complaining of the inroads of the war. They might, before the game, announce from a loud-speaker: "Second baseman wanted! Anyone wishing the job, call at the clubhouse."

This should at least increase the attendance.

After about thirty years of dickering it looks as if the flood waters of Indian Run in the Conewango section are to be taken care of to the satisfaction of home owners in that area. Last evening council decided to construct a concrete box culvert 3x8 feet, which should hold the stream in case of flash floods for a long time to come.

We would like to pay tribute to the abbreviated staff at the Young Men's Christian Association which is doing a bang-up job in providing recreation and entertainment for boys of the community this summer despite gas rationing and war-time regulations that make it difficult to provide programs for youngsters.

Housewives of Warren and other communities in Pennsylvania can aid in avoiding a sharp increase in the current egg shortage if they will refrain from rushing to buy eggs to preserve or "put down" for later use, the State Department of Agriculture reminds.

Considering the ban on pleasure driving and other restrictions Warren's parking meters didn't do so bad last month, the report made to council last evening reveals.

Announcement by Uncle Sam that food consumption will undergo a slight cut this year will make a lot of Warren people feel sorry they did not start a Victory Garden.

The mothers, fathers and all adults must share the responsibility for the present rise in youthful crimes. —FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover.

Washington In Wartime

(During Jack Stinnett's vacation, his column is being conducted by various members of the Washington staff of The Associated Press. This is the second of two columns on the White House by Harold Oliver.)

By HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's wartime workday starts about the same time as that of his "assistant president," former Supreme Court Justice James F. Byrnes—about 9 a.m.—but he doesn't reach his desk until 10:30.

Mr. Roosevelt's daily schedule has not altered much since the war began. He gets up around 8:30, takes his time dressing, reads four or five metropolitan dailies while breakfasting in bed, then receives his three secretaries to go over the day's engagements.

Sometimes, he calls in Byrnes or Admiral William D. Leahy, his chief of staff, before going to his oval office. His callers are fewer these days, as Byrnes sees many agency, departmental and congressional delegations for him. His mornings are given over to callers. Many of his afternoons now are devoted mostly to reading reports, including military messages, and dictating mail to Miss Grace Tully, his personal secretary. Only on two afternoons a week are there fixed engagements.

Tuesday's press conference and Friday's cabinet meeting. The President loses little time getting comfortable once he reaches his desk. He doesn't care for the air-cooling system so he has it short-circuited from his office and has all the windows opened. He's usually in light summer trousers and monogrammed shirt, no coat and often without tie, with shirt opened at the neck. Callers never see him without a tie, though.

So busy is he that he frequently calls in a veteran colored doorman at the White House—John Mays—for a haircut while he carries on some of the less weighty work of his office.

The President's day is long, for he frequently takes work with him to his living quarters after quitting his office between 6 and 7 P.M. Several times a week he stops off at the enclosed swimming pool and loosens up his muscles in the high-temperature water, at the same time working up an appetite for his dinner, usually light.

The White House dogs (there used to be a regular kennel of them until they got too belligerent with visitors) come in for considerable attention, particularly from the President and little Diana Hopkins, who lives at the President's house with her father (Harry Hopkins) and her step-mother.

Byrnes doesn't bring his "Whiskers" downtown, but correspondents attending the President's press conferences sometimes get a glimpse of Fala, Mr. Roosevelt's well-travelled Scotch, and Susan, the Hopkins' French poodle, scampering over the lawn in the rear of the executive offices.

A typical summer day, as far as the President's visiting calendar is concerned, was the one recently when the Chief Executive received two home-going Senators and the Pacific War Council in the forenoon, lunched with Attorney General Biddle, then saw three callers in the afternoon, including Secretary of State Hull.

reaction, ride peaceful Hoppy and sidekicks, California (that's Andy C. Lynd) and Lyn n (George Reeves). Before you can wink, the bandits are at it, and Hoppy and pals are in to the rescue. They save the pretty girl and her mamma, but the scoundrels get away with the jewels—all the pretty girl had as a wedding gift from her poor but proud fiance.

It went on from there, with Hoppy & Co. riding off in the end, leaving true love and virtue triumphant.

So here I consult my notes and find—none. An occasional squeal or giggle, as when California fell in the well, was scarcely worth recording. Molly, the music-loving burro, got laughs. The rest was taken in dead earnest and silence—five heads leaning forward, 10 ears straining for every word, hoofbeat, and pistol crack.

With reports from towns in this vicinity that their water supply was drying up inquiry at the local office develops the fact that Warren has plenty of water and that there is no danger of a shortage here.

Bill Hollister will celebrate his 86th birthday in December but he is hale and hearty and has just completed the moving of a house. He went to Yankee Bush this morning to undertake a similar job. During the days of the old excitement he piloted john boats loaded with nitroglycerine down the river. Bill believes in living dangerously and has done it for a long time.

Local Manpower Area One Of Largest Set-ups In State

Philadelphia, Aug. 3—A realignment of geographical administration divisions of the War Manpower Commission was effected today so that every section of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware will be given full service through WMC area directors.

Frank L. McNamee, regional manpower director, stated that the realignment eliminated six districts in Pennsylvania and two in New Jersey, which heretofore had received only limited service.

The territory formerly within districts is incorporated into WMC areas, each with a director, and a staff to supervise the MC program and the operations of the United States Employment Service, maintain current analyses of the labor market conditions, assist industry in effecting the maximum utilization of its manpower, and to institute aggressive recruitment campaigns where necessary.

The realignment will give several areas more territory to serve and some of the area management-labor war manpower committees will be revised and reconstituted to fit needs of the new areas.

Two new areas are set up in Pennsylvania, with headquarters at Altoona and Greensburg, and the Harrisburg area is consolidated with the York-Lancaster area. Headquarters for this area will be at Lancaster, and Harold J. Mehl will serve as acting area director. No area management-labor war

MURDER IN TIN

by CARL A. PETERSON

Chapter 22

I STARED at Johnson and tried to think. Lew Fall had felt that our best bet would be to let the Gestapo work on the job of picking up Taggard and his location, and after they had done so, to close the net.

Johnson, of course, had ripped all our nets. His new scheme, no doubt, included techniques to break any other nets of ours. He was clever and he had a good chance to really defeat us. The dust we had thrown at him had whirled back into our own eyes. He had only been taken in by the pretended love affair.

And as I glanced at Lila's frightened face, her large brown eyes moving from Johnson to me and back again to Johnson, I knew that it was no longer pretense. What had been pretense had changed under the impact of the last few days into the real thing. Time had worked for the Gestapo and not for us.

"What about it?" he said. "What about it?" The veins on his temples were filled with blood. The heat of his play was everywhere visible on his face. He was contemplating the moves open to me and what they meant for himself. Chevalle didn't count. He, too, had been over-run by Johnson's panzer drive. Suddenly Johnson approached me. "Calder, get in the bathroom there! You know the deal. You know it now. Get in!"

I STOOD up. I knew that if I jumped at him he would shoot. I knew that he would kill her, too. He would keep on shooting until he was killed himself. I knew everything about Johnson in that second. "What about her?"

"She gets free as soon as we get her old man. Get in there."

I stood there not knowing what to do. I couldn't trust him. I thought. He would kill her. And he would kill us both if I stood there. "Get in," he cried. "I'm pulling the trigger if you don't start walking when I tell you to. Walk."

I walked. I walked across the room into the small bathroom. I heard a key lock. I heard footsteps outside and then I heard nothing.

My unconscious spell didn't last long. I came to and pulled on the knob of the heavy old-fashioned mahogany door. The door was the only exit. There was no window. I rammed the door with my shoulder until the bone felt splintered. I pounded the wood. I snouted. My voice had to carry through two doors and the space between them. All the time I kept thinking that our men were sure to pick up Johnson and Chevalle.

But when assistance came and I was released, I found out that none of our people had seen Lila and the two agents. Staggered, I phoned Lew Fall.

WHEN he arrived in Room 12, he tossed questions at me. He listened and then sent a man after the building plans of the Club Opalo.

"Why don't you sit down?" he said to me.

I sat down. "They've licked us."

"No they haven't."

"They've got her."

"Do you mind a personal question?"

"I know what it is. Yes."

"I assure you that they haven't licked us."

"They've licked us."

"No. I appreciate your frame of mind."

"I should have called his bluff."

"From what you tell me, Johnson wasn't bluffing. If you would've called for help, you would've killed you and himself. A cornered Gestapo rat is dangerous."

"You're saying that to make me feel better."

"No. I'm not. I don't know how you will take this. But our primary motive is still the tin. That's our primary motive. Why don't you go back to the hotel and get some sleep?"

"I can't sleep."

He glanced at me, his own face sleepless and alert. "Then listen to what I have to say. Evidently, Johnson had a pretty accurate notion of what we were up to. Instead of our invalidating that strategy, Gestapo strategy has invalidated ours."

I felt terrible as he spoke. I couldn't say a thing. "However," he said, "It's not too hopeless. Their strategy is brilliant but it's also desperate. They, Johnson and Mirtilo, know that we will close in on them or try to, once they have the discovery maps in their possession. Yet they are counting on getting possession of the map and slipping through us out of the country."

THEY are counting on one of their short waves still at large to get them passage out. Passage on a Nazi sub. He leaned towards me. "They're not getting passage out unless they have the proper passports, the authentic discovery maps. The Gestapo has never been guilty of sentimentalism. Johnson and Mirtilo must escape from Mexico or eventually be caught by us. The Gestapo has selected the passport. That explains Johnson's desperation."

He could turn Government witness and give away the small fry under him. But that wouldn't save him from prison. He's desperate. The Gestapo operates in small rings. The members of each ring know each other. Each ring has a leader. Each ring has a specific job. Instructions come in by short-wave. Johnson realizes that Berlin has cold bloodedly calculated on some of its agents turning Government witness. Johnson knows this. He must succeed or face a prison sentence if he turns Government witness.

As for Chevalle, his position is even more desperate than Johnson's. Psychologically he still hasn't made the switch in his own mind from merchant to spy. He was flustered, panicked when I phoned him."

I wasn't listening. I was thinking: To hell with his logic. Lila was gone.

Chapter 23

I SPOKE with Fall a long time. I knew that I had to get all the new facts in my head if I was going to be any use to Lila. I began to realize that Chevalle was still important to us. Obviously, Chevalle couldn't grapple with his situation any more. That is why he had appealed to Johnson.

Fall continued: "Chevalle is finished. He won't escape on any Nazi sub. He's of no use any more to his Jap employers. I predict his murder. It is too bad for him that he didn't have strength to resist the people who enrolled him for the Japs. Probably he was told that in order to save his father, he would have to cooperate just a little. Probably, they drew him in deeper by degrees. Probably they gave him large sums of money in cash for relatively easy stints, using greed as well as terror."

"Are you suggesting that the Gestapo used similar methods with—"

"I wish we had the building plans of this club," he said impatiently, ignoring my question. "The plans will show the wall thickness throughout. That's what I want. The wall thickness. That will save us a foot by foot search. We'll concentrate on those walls that deviate from the average."

"Johnson, Chevalle and Miss Taggard didn't disappear into space. They left their room and entered another room or corridor on this floor or the floor above. Johnson knew of some concealed entry or passage. They used this entry which led them out of the building and through our men."

HE NODDED reflectively. "That Johnson certainly wants his passage to Berlin. He betrayed Chevalle by sending Hernandez to you. He knew that you would contact me. He was counting on our thinking up some scheme to deal with Chevalle. He selected the Club Opalo where he had an architect's knowledge of the place. These mansions, going back to the time of assassinations, frequently have secret passageways and rooms. If he hadn't decided to come here Johnson would have tried something else. His strategy also called for the seizure of Taggard's daughter. He knew that we had her under constant surveillance. And yet he had to get hold of her."

"If, to date, he has outwitted us, Sam Taggard has outwitted him. Johnson could see only one more tactic in his effort to get the Taggard tin and that was Taggard's daughter. Somewhat, somehow, he had to plan some device that would simultaneously secure the seizure of Miss Taggard and also nullify our guard. He succeeded."

"What about her? Please don't evade answering me. I want to know. You don't think that she's a Gestapo agent?"

"WHEN Hernandez visited you, you told me that it was Lila Taggard who pointed out that Opalo might mean Club Opalo. Is that correct?"

"Yes."

"What did Hernandez say in connection with Chevalle and Opalo?"

"He said that since he was a miner he had wondered if Senor Chevalle dealt in opals. That's about all."

"At the time, if I recall correctly, you didn't take much stock in Hernandez's talk."

"That's right. I didn't."

"But Miss Taggard did. What did she say?"

"She said at first that Hernandez perhaps had once bought an opal ring or seen one, that he was imaginative as most Mexicans are. Then—then she looked surprised and said there was a club by that name."

"In effect, then it was Miss Taggard who hit the nail on the head?"

"What are you getting at?"

"Johnson wanted you to go to the Club Opalo. All his plans hinged on you going there with Miss Taggard. You went there with her. She left with Johnson and Chevalle. We know very little of this girl."

"You're crazy! You suggest that she's a Gestapo agent, an ally of Johnson's working against her own father?"

"Bluntly speaking she might be Johnson's girl."

I chilled in the deepest parts of me. "Why do you say that?"

"How do you know that she isn't? They might be at odds over her father. That sort of situation has happened before. Just examine the facts we have about her and tell me whether they indicate innocence. Hasn't she refused to cooperate with us? Who first introduced you to Mirtilo? Who first brought you to Chevalle's home? Who supplied the information that Opalo was really the Club Opalo? Have you forgotten your own suspicions of her?"

"She wouldn't be working for Johnson against her own father."

"CHEVALE did certain things because of his father. Perhaps she hopes to save her father's life by implicitly obeying Johnson's orders. She introduced you to Mirtilo knowing you were a Government man, hoping you would follow him."

"Johnson told you his reasons for wanting to capture you. Your capture and your release were all part of their strategy—and she helped them in it. Then the Chevalle visit. A person is the sum of his actions, not of his intentions, especially in wartime. And don't forget the technique of using the lives of fathers, mothers, sisters, wives, children as pawns in the process of recruiting spies and agents is a favorite one of the Axis."

"The Gestapo wants her father's discovery and she has helped Johnson consistently to accomplish this. The price is the promise of her father's life. They may intend to break the promise, but that wouldn't bother their sense of ethics. However, we're falling in with Johnson's strategy. The kidnapping of Lila Taggard will appear in this morning's press. We'll see whether Sam Taggard is as loyal to his daughter as she is to him. And I guarantee that Johnson will not get away on his submarine."

I was too stunned to answer him.

Lt. Raymond Elliott And Martha Dotson United in Marriage

Announcement has been received here that Martha Elizabeth Dotson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beril A. Dotson, of St. Marys, W. Va., became the bride of Lt. Raymond Stewart Elliott, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Elliott, of Warren, in a beautiful home ceremony performed at 10 a. m. July 29.

Wedding music was played by Miss Patty Walton. The bride, entering to the strains of the "Lohengrin" bridal chorus to be given in marriage by her father, was preceded to the improvised altar in the living room by Mrs. James Torrance, of this city, her matron of honor. The bride's brother, Stanley Dutton, of Charleston, W. Va., was best man for Lt. Elliott and the officiating clergyman was Rev. E. M. Mitchell, of St. Paul's Methodist church, who united in marriage Mr. and Mrs. Dotson on the same street in June, 1916.

The bride chose a wedding gown of traditional white satin styled with fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline emphasized by minute embroidery. Her very full skirt fell to a train and her fingertip veil was held with a tiny cap of imported net trimmed with orange blossoms. A shower of white ribbons and baby's breath fell from the three white gardenias which decorated her prayer book. Her only jewelry was a pair of pearls, opals and diamonds belonging to her paternal grandmother. Mrs. Torrance wore dream blue tulle and net and Talisman roses in her hair.

An informal reception followed for the families and a few intimate friends. After this, the young people left for a wedding trip through the south. After August 8, they will be at home in Blytheville, Ark., where Lt. Elliott is an instructor at the Blytheville advanced flying school.

The bride is well known in Warren, having visited here since she was a small girl. Lt. Elliott is a graduate of Warren High School and was a student at Washington and Jefferson at the time of his enlistment in the Army Air Forces.

BICKEL-MCCAULEY RITES ARE ANNOUNCED

A pretty wedding took place in St. John's rectory at Tidoute on July 24, when Father Edward Jacobs united in marriage Mary Louise McCauley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. McCauley, of Irvine, and George H. Bickel, of Stroblon. Attendants were Lucille Aumer as maid of honor and S. P. Sage, of Cleveland, O., as best man.

The bride was prettily attired in white mousseline de soie with lace insets and her veil was fingertip length. White roses and baby's breath fashioned her bouquet. Miss Aumer wore aqua with matching veil and carried pink roses. The bride's mother wore white accessories with an ensemble of pale blue.

A wedding dinner at Pittsfield Inn followed the ceremony. After a brief honeymoon trip the couple are at home at the McCauley residence. Mr. Bickel is employed by the Zuck Coal Company and his wife has employment at Irvine with the National Forge and Ordnance Company.

KIRBERGER-MILLER CEREMONY PERFORMED
At nine o'clock last evening in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Rev. Carl E. Anderson performed the full ring ceremony which united in marriage Alice Jane Miller, daughter of Mrs. Clarabel Miller, and Robert Allen Kirberger, seaman first class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Kirberger, Sr. Attendants were Myron Miller, brother of the bride, and Mrs. Myron Kirberger, Jr., sister-in-law of the bridegroom. The bride and her matron of honor were both attired in blue and white.

Seaman Kirberger is home on 15-day furlough after overseas service and left with his bride in the evening for a wedding trip to Connecticut. Both young people are well known in the community. Mrs. Kirberger, graduate of the local high school in the Class of 1942, has been employed by the Bell Telephone Company. Seaman Kirberger was employed by Talon, Inc., before entering the naval service.

FOR MRS. PHILLIPS
Mrs. William Proukou was hostess at her home on Parker street for a gathering which marked the birthday anniversary of Mrs. W. J. Phillips. Guests assembled in the game room of the Proukou home and enjoyed a pleasant evening of cards and games. A buffet lunch was served and Mrs. Phillips was presented with attractive remembrances.

Those present were Mrs. C. P. Spiridon, Mrs. R. C. Doolittle, Mrs. J. V. Scalise, Mrs. Leroy Gilson, Mrs. N. B. Pierce, Mrs. L. J. Farr, Mrs. A. Yagge, Mrs. A. Valone, Mrs. H. Chinberg, Mrs. J. M. ### MARGARET M. PORTER BRIDE IN COLORADO

A very pretty wedding took place July 10 in the United Brethren church in Colorado Springs, Colo., when Miss Margaret M. Porter, daughter of Mrs. Ella H. Porter, of Chandler's Valley, became the bride of Cpl. Ernest R. Abbott, son of Frank Abbott, of Sugar Grove.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Schaefer and attendants were a sister of the bridegroom, Miss Ruth I. Abbott, as maid of honor, and Reinhardt Reisig as best man.

Both Cpl. and Mrs. Abbott are graduates of the Sugar Grove Joint Vocational School and well known here.

"Doodads For Defense" Are Defined In Doubtful Ditty

The lines printed below in the name of verse are a little contribution designed to spur the collection of costume jewelry that is being staged by Warren Business and Professional Women's Club members in cooperation with the salvage committee of the Civilian Defense Council.

Gay red, white and blue boxes have been placed in many establishments about town for collection of "Doodads" and Warren women and girls are urged to get busy and fill them to overflowing in this unique salvage project. The plan is explained in these few lines:

Milady is now asked to find Bright doodads of most any kind: Like five-and-dime jewelry

And other tomfoolery, Appealing to heathenish mind.

Our boys, when the foe's line they breach

Are anxious to have within reach. Some earrings that twinkle Or bracelets that tinkle In jungle, on desert or beach.

So—round up your baubles galore: That novelty junk in the drawer, Like that old tarnished pin: Grandma's brooch made of tin: They're off to take part in the war.

Strife is a creature of angles—Battlefield struggles and wrangles: But who ever once thought That a war would be fought With second-hand trinkets and bangles!

Letter to
P.O.W.

Will you write a letter to a Prisoner of War . . . tonight?

Maybe he is one of Jimmie Doolittle's boys. Perhaps he was left behind when Bataan fell. Anyway, he's an American, and he hasn't had a letter in a long, long time.

And when you sit down to write, tell him why you didn't buy your share of War Bonds last pay day—if you didn't.

"Dear Joe," you might say, "the old topcoat was getting kind of threadbare, so I . . . " No, cross it out. Joe might not understand about the topcoat, especially if he's shivering in a damp Japanese cell.

Let's try again. "Dear Joe, I've been working pretty hard and haven't had a vacation in over a year, so . . . "

Hell, better cross that out, too. They don't ever get vacations where Joe's staying.

Well, what are you waiting for? Go ahead, write the letter to Joe. Try to write it, anyhow.

But mister, if somehow you find you can't finish that letter, will you, at least, do this for Joe? Will you up the amount of money you're putting into your Payroll Savings Plan—so that you'll be buying your share of War Bonds from here on in? And will you—for Joe's sake—start doing it right away?

But Handful of States Can Avoid Drafting of Fathers After Oct. 1

essary to send 450,000 men to induction centers. Married men still in civilian life average 30.5 years of age and the rejection rate was expected to be high.

Quotas for August and September call for inducting 275,000 men each month. The armed forces are counting on 625,000 for the last three months of the year. Of that number however 150,000 can be obtained from the ranks of youths newly turned 18 and another 175,000 from single men still in civilian life.

The army is shooting for a top strength of 8,200,000 and the sea services have a goal of 3,100,000.

Harrisburg, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Col. Richard K. Mellon, state Selective Service director, instructed Pennsylvania's 422 local boards today to "call as few pre-Pearl Harbor fathers" as possible in complying with orders from national headquarters for induction of fathers beginning October 1.

Col. Mellon's order to the local boards was among his first official acts as head of the state's Selective Service system. He assumed office yesterday.

Mr. Mellon's order, with Miss Laura Platenberg assigned to that office and with Miss Hope Ellberg appointed clerk in the high school office. At Beaty building, Miss Martha June Dutches will be afternoon library clerk.

On the janitorial staff, vacancies at Seneca and Home street remain to be filled, both part time positions, where it is hoped women may be secured. Adam Reip was chosen to succeed the late Charles Meyers and Sam Pascuzzi was added to the staff. Transfers included Ernest Babcock's assignment to the Johnson building beginning August 1 and Mrs. A. V. Engstrom from Seneca to the high school on part-time basis. Superintendent John G. Rossman was instructed to express to John A. Westland, retiring after 35 years, the appreciation of the board for his splendid service. A similar expression was placed on record to be sent to the family of Charles Meyers, who had been with the school district 13 years.

Among other items taken up at the meeting was authorization for the addition of a first and second year course in Spanish for grades 11 and 12, elections in German and French having fallen off and more than 100 pupils having elected Spanish.

The day for weekday religious education was again changed to Wednesday, in compliance with a request from the council and permission granted for use of the same marking system as employed in the high school. As an advantage to both the schools and the religious education program, the hour for this period of instruction was changed from 10:40 a. m. to 2:10 p. m., students going to their various instruction centers for one hour and others remaining at the school for special study.

The day for weekday religious education was again changed to Wednesday, in compliance with a request from the council and permission granted for use of the same marking system as employed in the high school. As an advantage to both the schools and the religious education program, the hour for this period of instruction was changed from 10:40 a. m. to 2:10 p. m., students going to their various instruction centers for one hour and others remaining at the school for special study.

Among other items taken up at the meeting was authorization for the addition of a first and second year course in Spanish for grades 11 and 12, elections in German and French having fallen off and more than 100 pupils having elected Spanish.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Dorothy McGuire isn't Claudia. Not really. She says so herself. I had gone up to her apartment to inquire if Dorothy, like the Claudia that made her famous on the stage and brought her to movies, ever had check-book trouble. Dorothy was late, a little. She rushed in, finally, so cute and so springy with vitality I reached for my vitamin pills. Her burnt-blond hair was blown and tangled. A button had come off her white sports dress, and she looked as if she'd had a hurrying day. She was disheveled but still going strong. And cute, with the warmest, friendliest little giggle imaginable.

"I was as my dressmaker's," she said. "She's Hungarian, and we have trouble communicating with each other so it took longer than I expected. This dress she's making is going to be perfectly wonderful—either a hit or a complete miss. It'll be perfect if it turns out—if it doesn't I'll look like a piece of upholstery with a poov in its hair. Oh, I had a lovely bottle of wine on ice for you since yesterday, but—it went. I'm so sorry, Beer?"

BEER with Claudia—I mean Miss McGuire—I mean Mrs. John Swope, which she's just become—is most refreshing. We got down to the check-book question. "Oh," she said, "I shouldn't tell this because it sounds like Claudia, and I'm really not Claudia, really I'm not, and I don't want to be thought of as being Claudia. But the truth is, I never had a check-book until after I was in

'Claudia.' Never had enough money to need one.

"When I did, I went to the bank one day to find out something, and they asked me if I ever balanced my check-book. I remembered a line from the play, 'Banks don't make mistakes, and I used that. But the banker said no, banks did make mistakes sometimes, and I should start balancing my check-book. I haven't yet, but I intend to start—for discipline's sake if nothing else."

Miss McGuire said that, since her movie was finished, she had been "at liberty." She hated having nothing to do, and hoped her next picture would be totally unlike "Claudia." On the stage, before "Claudia," she had done other roles—among them Martha Scott's in "Our Town" when Martha came to Hollywood.

SHE was glad to be in Hollywood herself now, though some of her New York friends had argued that she should wait. "You've made a beginning, but no more," they told her. "You should perfect yourself as an actress and become a real star before trying pictures." But Miss McGuire disagreed. "If I hadn't come to Hollywood now I might never have had the chance again," she said. "Suppose I didn't have another hit—and then they forget me?"
